To connect to a wireless display in Windows 10:

1. Turn on the TV, change the input to HDMI
2. Press the “Windows+K” keyboard shortcut on the laptop to open the Connect pane.
3. Look for the adapter name in the Connect pane; it may take a few moments to appear.
4. Select the name of the adapter to connect.
5. When you’re finished with the connection, reopen the Connect pane and press the “Disconnect” button.

The quickest way to connect is using a keyboard shortcut. Press Win+K to open Windows 10's Connect panel, which will appear as a flyout to the right of your screen. Alternatively, you can click the "Connect" quick settings tile in Action Center (pictured above) to launch this flyout.
